REAL EXAMS

***The following are actual student answers from actual science tests. {courtesy of "The Edge" from the pages of The Oregonian}:

~~~Some people can tell what time it is by looking at the sun. But I have never been able to make out the numbers.

~~~The spinal column is a long bunch of bones. The head sits on the top and you sit on the bottom.

~~~A monsoon is a French gentleman.

~~~Cadavers are dead bodies that have donated themselves to science. This procedure is called gross anatomy.

~~~Methane, a greenhouse gas, comes from the burning of trees and cows.

~~~An example of animal breeding is the farmer who mated a bull that gave a great deal of milk with a bull with good meat.

~~~Men are mammals and women are femammals.

~~~Someday we may discover how to make magnets that can point in any direction.

~~~In looking at a drop of water under a microscope, we find there are twice as many H's as O's.

~~~Many dead animals in the past changed to fossils while others preferred to be oil.

~~~All animals were here before mankind. The animals lived peacefully until mankind came along and made roads, houses, hotels and condos.

~~~Genetics explains why you look like your father and if you don't, why you should.

~~~As the rain forests in the Amazon are shrinking, so are the Indians.

~~~When oxygen is combined with anything, heat is given off. This is known as constipation.

~~~When they broke open molecules, they found they were only stuffed with atoms. But when they broke open atoms, they found them stuffed with explosions.

Dorothy's ruby slippers, Alan Shepard's Mercury spacecraft, and Mary Pickford's 182-carat blue Star of Bombay sapphire are only a few of the more than 300 treasures you can see at America's Smithsonian in the newly remodeled and expanded Portland Expo Center. Enter this traveling exhibition of highlights from the museums' collections through a 22-foot-tall replica of the Smithsonian Castle's facade. Three interior exhibition galleries contain such wonders as a 1948 Tucker sedan, a life mask of Abraham Lincoln and gowns worn by America's first ladies.

The CCC Social Committee was very fortunate to have been able to purchase a limited number of "reserved tour" tickets to the much sought-after America's Smithsonian Exhibition for Saturday, May 3.

Because of the limited number of tickets available, we are initially limiting sales to two tickets per staff/faculty member while supplies last.

For more information or to purchase your tickets, contact Donna Pomeroy 42425.
